You are required to actively look for work

While you are unemployed and requesting unemployment benefits, you are required to actively look for suitable employment each week. Here are some examples of activities that would count as an active work search:

- Researching job openings
- Completing job applications
- Attending a job fair or networking event
- Attending a CareerForce seminar for job seekers
- Contacting your former employer to ask if any work is available

If you need help with your work search, you can get free assistance from your local CareerForce location. Visit www.careerforcemn.com for more information.

You may be notified that you have been scheduled to attend a mandatory reemployment session. At that session a counselor will share information that will help you look for a job more effectively. The counselor will also help you prepare an individualized work search plan.

Request benefit payment

To receive unemployment benefits, you must make timely requests for payment every week. You are scheduled to submit your first Request for Payment during the week of:

- 10/10/2021 through 10/16/2021

Information handbook

You are required to review the handbook as it informs you of your responsibilities and what you need to do to receive unemployment benefits. (The Information Handbook is always available at www.uimn.org/.)
